Voices, Horns Sound Off As Choruses, Band Add

The sound of voices and the tuning of instruments once again floats from the Fine Arts Center. For the past week the directors, Dr. Edwin Liemohn and Dr. E. A. Hovdesven, have been choosing new voices for Choir and Castle Singers. Ernest Hagen, band director, has been selecting new personnel.

Wartburg Choir added 25 new members, the following freshmen receiving positions: Burdean Berndt, Joyce Kramer, Verlene Barth, Mary Ann Thompson, Joan Braner, Faye Frerichs, Frances Fye, Karen Manten, Sue Schwab, David Grube, Dean Phillips, Tom Maik, Ralph Hicken, Douglas Kutschat and Richard Jebsen.

Sophomores include Lorraine Johnson, Marion Chatfield, Carolyn Krueger, Irene Stier, Robert Kriesel, Keith Lentz and Jim Eissinger. Juniors are Janice Cave and Keith Folzman.

Sophomores added are Gloria Bierwagen and Larry Stumme. Juniors included are Jerry Bentz and Paul Kuhlmann.

Hagen claims this year's band will be rated as one of the best. In the flute section the chairs will be filled by Linda Mugridge, Joyce Lee Kramer and Marilyn Lindstrom. The new oboe player is Adele Carr.

New Look

Emblazoned across this copy of The Wartburg Trumpet is a new name plate being used for the first time. This plate was designed to replace the old one, which had been in service for three years.

The characters are in modified Germanic script and were designed by John Solem, junior. Solem, staff artist for the Trumpet, was the subject of a feature story in One Magazine this spring.

Solons Open Discussions

Student Senate members met for their opening session of the '57-'58 school year Monday evening.

Committee appointments comprised part of the agenda for the opening meeting. Publications, Artist Series, Athletics, Movie Chairman, Physical Recreation, Religious Activities, and Cafeteria Committee members were named with no specific heads given.

Homecoming Chairman James Schwarz proposed that the Senate sponsor a dance for the occasion. The Activities Committee has been appointed to investigate all possibilities in regard to the sponsorship of the dance.

Campus traffic problems were brought before the Senate in order that action might be taken to remedy the difficulties. A number of problems discussed included setting of parking limits, enforcement of decals on car windows, no overnight parking in front of the Union, no parking in front of Ketha and Cotta housing units. Fines will be levied for violations and revenues will go to the Senate. As of now, the matter has been referred to a special committee, Student Welfare, and a report will be made at the next Senate meeting.

Because of a clause in the Student Handbook which states that freshman elections cannot be held until the third week of school, the election scheduled for last Thursday was postponed until Monday, Sept. 16.

New Office

President C. H. Becker and Dean John Chellevold ponder academic problems in the president's new office. Both administrators have new quarters in the southwest corner of Luther Hall.

Enrollment Sets Record

With enrollment for the 1957 fall semester almost completed, Wartburg boasts a total thus far of 832 full-time students, an increase of 25 over last year. The addition of 20 special and part-time students brings the Wartburg student body to 852 members.

The 343 squires belonging to the green beanie clan not only outnumber any other single class but also represent the largest number of freshmen ever to invade Wartburg. Progressively smaller classes of 234, 143 and 112 are the contributions of the sophomores, juniors and seniors, respectively.

Last year at this time, Wartburg's enrollment by classes was freshmen, 323; sophomores, 236; juniors, 127; and seniors, 121.

Take A Number

"Sorry. Wrong Number."

This problem will be eliminated when the new Wartburg College directory is completed late in September. The directory, put out by the Beta Delta chapter of Alpha Phi Gamma journalism fraternity, will include individual phone numbers for the new telephone system on campus.

Other features include addresses and telephone numbers of all faculty and administration members, officers of organizations and lists of students with home and school addresses. The directory will sell for 35 cents.

Students To Hear Bishop

Bishop Rajah B. Manikam, president of the Federation of Lutheran Churches in India, will address the student body at Thursday's convocation.

Bishop Manikam, in this country for the Lutheran World Federation assembly held in Minneapolis during August, is also East Asia secretary for the International Missionary Council and for the World Council of Churches.

The Indian church leader, who speaks English fluently, received his B.A. and M.A. from the University of Madras, his B.D. from Lutheran Theological Seminary, Philadelphia; his Ph.D. from Columbia University of Toronto; and his S.T.D. from the University of Erlangen, Germany.

EDUCATOR TOO. In 1937 Bishop Manikam was elected secretary of the National Christian Council of India with special responsibility for Christian higher education. At the time the board was responsible for 39 colleges in India.

The bishop's interest in theology and Christian higher education has inspired him to write several books. Among these are "Religious Mysticism in India," "Christian Collegiate Education in South India," "The Christian College and the Christian Community" and several others.

SECOND TIME. Bishop Manikam is coming to the Wartburg campus for the second time since arriving in this country. He previously spoke at the Iowa District Women's Missionary Federation convention in August.

Football will be featured in Tuesday's convo. Athletic Director Ax Bundgaard and head football coach Norm Johansen will present this year's edition of the gridiron Knights to the student body. Johansen will explain some of the basic plays this year's squad will employ.

NOT IN NEUNDETTELSAU

Germany, Wartburg Again United

By Joan Pape

"That we may come together by the mutual faith of both you and me. It is in this spirit that I wish to accept the high honor which you confer on me."

With these words, Herman Dietzfelbinger, bishop of the Lutheran church in Bavaria, accepted the honorary degree of doctor of divinity at Thursday's convocation here.

Bishop Dietzfelbinger stated in an interview that he had looked for and found this same spirit of unity in the Lutheran World Federation assembly in Minneapolis recently.

"The theme 'Christ Frees and Unites' was great because it kept us together," stated the bishop. "There was an actual community of thought — not merely cordiality, but unity in Christ."

Bishop Dietzfelbinger, who is experiencing his first visit to the United States, stated that he was first impressed with its immense space.

"It is not only the physical space which amazes me," he remarked, "but also the possibilities of the areas and the efficiency with which the cities, such as San Francisco, are built. It is the great area which makes the fine cities possible. In West Germany, which contains 55 million people in an area about the size of Iowa, such a thing cannot be."

GREEN BEANIES? One of the bishop's first comments concerning Wartburg was "Why all the green hats?" When the tradition of initiation had been explained to him, he remarked that in Germany the students belong to organizations which have their own colors, but that they have no practice similar to ours.

Bishop Dietzfelbinger remarked that he felt his visit to Wartburg a special privilege because of the college's historical connection with Germany. He himself has spent many years working with students, as he was president of the student movement in Germany for seven years and president of a theological seminary for another seven years. He stated that college life in Germany is much different from that in the United States because, first of all, all schools are state supported, and, secondly, the students have no dormitory or campus life.

VISITS CHURCHES. As might be expected, the bishop was especially interested in visiting the churches of America, and he remarked that he did have the opportunity to do so, particularly on the West Coast. The active participation of the congregations in church work impressed him greatly, and he expressed a feeling that German people could learn much from them.

VOLKSKIRCHE? "In Bavaria, church life is very comprehensive," stated Bishop Dietzfelbinger. "The church, or Volkskirche, as it is called, reaches into many phases of life, having a much greater influence on general affairs than seems to be the case in America."

The bishop went on to say, "I especially like to think back to my years as secretary of the student movement. My memories of this time are especially vivid because it was during the war years and, although the movement was suppressed by the government, the students nevertheless carried on through the inspiration of God's word. Among students it is much easier to carry on life as it is portrayed in the New Testament."

BISHOP DIETZFELBINGER becomes Dr. Dietzfelbinger as he is invested with the hood of Doctor of Divinity at Thursday's special academic convocation.

Who Picks Up The Tab?

Now that the long lines of registrants have filed through the doors of the treasurer's office, it might be a good idea to see exactly what the Wartburg student is paying for. And, more important, what he's not paying for.

A look at the college catalog shows that tuition is $460 a year. However, some ninety-five per cent of the students get $50 knocked off either through parish or community scholarships, leaving a $410 tuition charge to the great majority of students.

It's still a big chunk of money, but if the student thinks he's picking up the entire tab — well, let's take a few looks at some more figures. First of all, the American Lutheran Church subsidizes Wartburg College to the extent of almost one hundred thousand dollars annually. This is for actual operating expenses, over and above contributions for building.

Divided, that equals about $120 per student. Then, add onto that, other sources of income the college has, such as income from endowment, interest from the Ford Foundation Grant, gifts and one or two other miscellaneous means, and it averages close to $150 per student.

So, although the student is picking up a good-sized tab, if he were forced to pick up the entire bill for his education, he'd find the total considerably higher.

Sunday's Des Moines Register carried a list of all Iowa colleges, showing what students had to pay in each college. Of the private schools, Wartburg ranked fourth lowest of the 21 schools listed.

Wartburg's rate for room, board and tuition — $928 — was among the lowest for schools of comparable size and nature. For example, Capital University, Columbus, Ohio, another ALC school, has a charge of $1,100. Luther College, Decorah, has $1,000 as its basic charge.

List of comparable schools for room, board and tuition is as follows:

School	Room & Board	Tuition & Fees	Total
Buena Vista	$600	$440	$1,060
Capital	$535	$575	$1,100
Carthage	$546	$570	$1,116
Coe	$680	$660	$1,340
Grinnell	$770	$780	$1,550
Pacific Lutheran	$520	$572	$1,092
St. Olaf	$525	$570	$1,145
Texas Lutheran	$497	$402	$ 899
WARTBURG	$468	$460	$ 928

So, although Wartburg rates appear to be high and though there is little, if anything, to indicate any downward trend, the educational dollar at Wartburg College is still a big bargain. And the student isn't picking up the entire tab by himself.

A couple of my fellow Vollmerians, at least, had a more interesting time than most of us had this summer. After working most of the summer in Idaho, Ron Korfmacher and Bill Melvin took their final week's pay and went to California and Las Vegas, Nev.

Korfmacher had an even more interesting time. He was picked up by the police in Beverly Hills and questioned for a half hour. It seems he fit perfectly the description of a man who had kidnapped a model in Beverly Hills a month before.

Students in oral interp class have noticed that Mr. Lestrud sounds a great deal like Ronald Coleman. I had a teacher in high school who sounded like Ronald Coleman too. But it didn't matter much — she was pretty.

Went into the Steak House this week (to eat steak, of course) and noticed that the music in the juke box there is much better than the music in the Den juke box.

□ □ □

When the Bishop Dietzfelbinger story was assigned to Joan Pape, there was a lot of joking about his probably not being able to speak English. When she went over to President Becker's house to interview the Bishop, she discovered that he actually couldn't speak English well enough for an interview. Fortunately, President Becker served as interpreter, and the Wartburg Trumpet has come roaring through with another feature story.

□ □ □

I have a revolutionary new idea for Outfly this year — sleep. Yes, freshmen, that day you keep hearing about is extremely close. YOU won't be able to, but I am going to bar my door and sleep through the entire day. The water is cold.

□ □ □

Finally, after using my freshman picture for three years, the Trumpet broke down and bought a new cut of me. The editor explained the drastic action by saying, "Loslo, your column gets less funny each week. We need something in there to give your readers a good laugh." And then he sits there gloating. He knows I can't quit the paper because I am taking reporting.

WHIRLED AFFAIRS

Middle East Situation Demands Policy Change

By Bob Mayer

The situation in the entire Middle East has at last come to that point where it becomes necessary for the United States to somewhat modernize its policy. Perhaps the Soviet advance into Syria has come as a grim augury for the future unless effective counter steps are taken.

(Ed. note. "Whirled Affairs" is a regular Trumpet feature of commentary on the national and international scene. Columnist Bob Mayer, World Affairs Forum president, has extensively traveled and lived abroad and is in a position to give valuable insight to the news behind the headlines.)

Events have followed a devastatingly logical sequence which history has shown to be irrevocable once the initial step has been taken. The fact is that in the Middle East there is in process a large arms build-up, transfiguring that area into a concentrated armed camp. Worse yet, the creeping flames of jealous nationalism are drawing alarmingly near.

Mayer

In retaliation to American military action in the Middle East, the Soviet Union has quite logically poured her own arms into the lap of a weak but receptive Syria. The Syrians, true to ritual, have announced that these arms are purely for defensive purposes.

Following in similar texts came pronouncements from other Arab nations declaring that the common enemy is and always has been powerful Israel. Clearly, the basic problem in the Middle East, the status of Arab-Jew relations, remains totally unsolved.

Soviet propaganda has so effectively allied itself with such local nationalistic issues as to have become synonymous with protagonistic aims. In contrast, the U.S. position, permeated as it is with ill-disguised militarism, assumes the shape of an antagonistic force. Our intricate alliances and counter-alliances have only embroiled us by forcing us to burn our candle at both ends.

While on one hand we support anti-Arab Israel, we also are allied to anti-Jewish Jordan. And it must seem strange to the world that, while we preach peace, in action we are simultaneously preparing for war. Recent American naval movements in the Mediterranean and the arms lift to Jordan are the most provoking blunders committed through our foreign policy.

Today the odds are against our success in the Middle East, assuming that war does not break out. The Soviets possess the advantages of ruthlessness, timeliness of their accusations and the attractive promises of mutual benefit. We cannot fight on these grounds, nor can we make impossible promises.

Whatever the odds, the stakes we hold in the Middle East towards the future are too great to make allowance for failure.

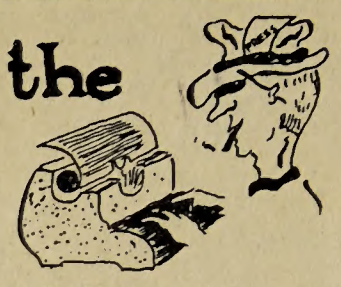
Gridmen To Open Against Parsons

I'm not the coach but ...



By Wilbur Flachman

Comes tbe season when speculators toss around convictions on this fall's football attractions. The word from the authorities favors Minnesota's Gophers heading for Pasadena next Jan. 1 and the Giants annexing their second consecutive title in the pro ranks.

But of interest on the local scene — we have an even battle shaping up in the Iowa Conference. Although it would be like crawling way out on a dead limb to make definite predictions this early in tbe campaign, it appears that there won't be a sub-par club in the conference. It also looks improbable that there is a squad capable of squeezing through the schedule without tasting defeat at least once.

Who is the best bet to be champ? All nine contenders reportedly are loaded with freshman talent. From an early season standpoint, it looks as though Luther and Central are the teams to beat. The Dutchmen, last year's title holders, have a shortage of experienced ball carriers. Verne Boelkens and Don Morehead, outstanding stars of the past few years, won't be back to carry the pigskin, but a seasoned front line will carry a lot of weight for the Pella school.

Luther of course is always tough on the gridiron and it looks like this year's outfit won't be any exception, even though the Vikings will have to depend on a lot of green material to produce. The darkhorse to watch could be Simpson. Tbe Redmen have experience at every position, plus a host of promising rookies. Parsons, with 18 lettermen on hand. should definitely be listed as a contender. Buena Vista, with Jerry Ibach running well in early practices, should give the rest of the clubs a hard time.

Don't forget the Knights. Jo's boys are going to be out to shake off some of those bad breaks suffered last season. Added depth to mould around the nucleus of a veteran backfield, should make this a more fruitful season for Wartburg. Barring unforeseen mishaps, you can count on some victories to snap us out of the doldrums of the previous two nightmares. It might take a game or two to find the right combo, but then watch out.

Iowa Wesleyan, with an abundant supply of freshman talent, could prove to be a thorn in the side. Moco Mercer's charges at the University of Dubuque should tear up a little more turf this season with several letter winners back. Upper Iowa's club will be on par with last year's bunch, making it a sneaker for conference honors. So, all in all, prospects look good for a really interesting trophy chase.

While students' eyes are focused on the coming football season, all of Coach Earnie Oppermann's baseball vets return to school with reports on this summer's diamond activity.

Fred Jaspers, mainstay of the moundstaff last spring, hurled for Rochester, Minn., in the Southern Minnie league. Craig Wason was the backstop for the Hudson ball club. Denny Wessels played for his hometown team at Independence, and Charlie Maahs did likewise for Tilleda, Wis.

Ralph Wolken saw action with Marshalltown, Wayne Slack rendered his services at New Hampton, and Darwin Fritz recorded a good summer with the Sumner Cubs, a team that claimed the state American Baseball Congress crown.

By Wilbur Flachman

Coach Norm Johansen had his Wartburg football players' noses to the grindstone this week in an effort to turn out a smooth functioning machine for next week's gridiron opener.

Knigbts will play bost to the Parsons Wildcats next Saturday in their Iowa Conference debut. Kickoff time is 1:30 p.m.

"We've got a lot of work to do before next Saturday," commented Jo in a practice session this week. "We're hoping to see some improvement over last season."

Tbe veteran mentor will send his charges through a full-scale scrimmage today, with emphasis on getting a better look at the numerous freshman prospects. To date, several of the first-year candidates are bucking the veterans for starting roles.

Coach O. B. Nelson will bring a seasoned crew with bim to Waverly next weekend. The Kelly Greens have 18 lettermen on the squad.

Loaded in the backfield, Parsons must count on inexperienced linemen to come through if the Fairfield school aims to cut the mustard this season.

IM Football Opener Set

Wartburg College intramural program will swing into action next Thursday with initial contests in flag football. Denny Wessels was appointed to head the pigskin sport this fall.

Committee members appointed for the coming year by the Student Senate to work with chairman Fred Jaspers are Wayne Slack, Wilbur Flachman, Wendell Wilharm, Doug Schuldt, Mary Reiff, Jan Welch and Wessels.

The fees for IM activities will be 25 cents again this year. Team captains of dorm and housing units are asked to start preparing rosters for next week's action. All rosters, plus 25 cents per player, must be turned into Wessels before time for the opening game or the team will be forced to forfeit, according to Jaspers.

Campus Station Sets Sept. 16 As Opening Day

KWAR-FM, campus radio station, will go on the air Monday, Sept. 16, at 5 p.m., according to Bruce Friedrich, station manager. This is the earliest operating date in several years.

The year's personnel includes, in addition to Friedrich, Arlow Bice and Lothar Pietz, juniors, as co-chief engineers; Gerry Dexter, senior, program director; and Bob Loslo, senior, news editor.

"We will go on the air with much improved programs and operating techniques," announced Friedrich. "Also, our record library is constantly increasing."

Under wraps until Tuesday evening at 8, is a new program called "Xiris V." The nature of the program will not be disclosed until that time.

Also new is a DJ show, "Sounds of Jazz," with junior Helen Beam. The time is Thursday at 8 p.m. News of church activities of all faiths will be heard Monday at 6:45 under the title of "The Church at Work."

Back from last year, but rejuvenated and improved, are "Reflections," an 11 p.m. program of uninterrupted music, and "Impromptu Delicious," a telephone request program. Friedrich is the DJ for the program, which is set for Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Plans for a discussion program, "Let's Talk it Over," under Robert Smith, acting speech department head, are being made, The program will be tentatively aired in a month.

Students, Bus. Mgr. Attending Convention

Several Wartburg students and H. C. Engelbrecht, business manager, are attending the Central District Brotherhood Convention at Mineola this weekend.

Engelbrecht will speak on the panel there this afternoon and at the banquet tonight. William Jurgens, senior, will appear as a soloist.

Marv Ehnen, Arlyn Saathoff, Ron Saathoff and Delmar Klover, freshman quartet, will also be on the program. Although the quartet members come from both Kansas and Nebraska, they all belong to the same church, State Line Lutheran Church, Wymore, Neb., and have sung together frequently.

Let's Meet Friends

By Kathi

Hi!

The "ayes" have it on campus these days. Organizations are electing their officers for the year. Let's see who these executives are:

The Women's Athletic Association (better known as WAA) met Wednesday to elect their leaders. Incidentally, the president, Esther (Bunny) Brinkman, a senior, was elected last spring. The vice president is senior Phyllis Koester with sophomores Lee Olsen as secretary and Gretchen Utke as treasurer. Several chairmen were also elected. Mary Buss, senior, is points chairman; Nancy Mista, senior, is fall sports chairman; and sophomore Betty Meyer is publicity chairman. By the way, what is a points chairman?

Frenz

● ● ●

Tom Brower, senior, president of the Business Students Association, tells me that his executive board will consist of senior Ovie Jessen, vice president; junior Lois Huth, secretary; and senior Ken Freeman, treasurer.

● ● ●

More of these "responsibility carrying" students are officers of the Passavant Club. Gordon Hanson, senior, will share honors as president with veep Dick Grave and secretary Janet Walter, both juniors. Jan Cave, junior, must have been impressed with the club. She went to see what it was about and ended up accepting the job of treasurer!

● ● ●

Student Education Association is set to go under its new name and new officers. The president, senior Kay Fritschel, was elected last spring; however, the other officers were elected Monday evening. Mary Joens, sophomore, will take over as the president's right-hand man. Oops, woman! Secretary is senior Ann Finnern; treasurer, Emil Kuebler, senior; librarian, junior Barbara Aslakson; and publicity (my right-hand woman), Barbara Voigts, sophomore.

● ● ●

Attention, all "Ike" fans and supporters. Young Republicans meet Monday. All members, old and prospective, are invited. That's at 7 p.m. in Room 207 of Luther Hall. A movie (My guess is that it will be political) will be shown and refreshments served.

● ● ●

Nothing to do tonight? Put on your dancing shoes and get down to Irving School. The combo is playing for an all-school dance. Lots of fun for everybody. Right now the upperclassmen are wishing they were freshmen. . . . . freshmen get in free, while the "honorable upperclassmen" have to pay 50 cents. That's hard to figure out when you consider that the party is sponsored by the sophomore class. Oh, yes, it begins at 8 p.m.

● ● ●

Here's a once-a-year chance to get a free Sunday night supper. St. Paul's Lutheran Church is sponsoring a get-acquainted lunch Sunday starting at 4:30 p.m. in the Union. It is a fine gesture on the part of the congregation. Let's show them how much we appreciate it.

That's the extent of the organizational news for this week. Be back next week with more on where to meet friends (or Frenz).

'Bye

Fall Play Slated

"The Hasty Heart," a three-act play written by John Patrick, will be the fall dramatic production, as announced by Vernon Lestrud, director.

Tryouts will be held Sept. 26 and 27. Hours will be announced later. The play, with casting for eight men and one woman, will be staged Nov. 7, 8 and 9, with rehearsals starting Oct. 1.

"I hope everyone interested will read at tryouts," stated Lestrud, "for there is an equal chance for everyone. I would like to get an idea of the available talent."

Becker Speaks

President C. H. Becker will speak at a mission festival in Hazen, N. D., this weekend. On last Tuesday, he also spoke to the Nazareth Lutheran Brotherhood, Cedar Falls.

Top Frosh Scorers Listed For English

Wartburg College freshmen distinguished themselves on the Diagnostic Reading Test and the Mechanics of Expression Test given to them during the first week of school, according to Miss Cora Ebert, English Department.

Scoring 94 per cent or above on the Diagnostic Reading Test were Bruce Bergquist, Beverly Hunt, Grace Jahn, David Grube, Mary Noeldner, Catherine Carr, Mark Engelbrecht, Linda Mugridge, Darlene Aper, Paul Ahrens and Paul Moeller.
